

An invertebrate 'minibeast' area was established which includes habitat mounds and log piles to attract various species of beetle.

The area also features habitat paving ideal for viewing worms and other insects and habitat boxes created and built by volunteers and staff.

